FEBRUARY TAX SETTLEMENT IS $600,083.54 AUDITOR SHOWS

February settlement of the collection of the December installment of 1929 taxes amounts to $600,083.54, according to an announcement by County Auditor Paul H. Creswell.

Of this amount, $139,124.67 reverts to Greene County, $18,527.03 is paid to the state, while the balance goes to the various townships, villages and school districts, Xenia city receives $84,003.82.

The tax settlement for townships follows: Bath, $1,139.54; Beavercreek, $5,120.85; Caesar Creek, $1,601.22; Cedarville, $3,801.11; Jefferson, $2,131.17; Miami, $2,309.86; New Jasper, $1,845.05; Ross, $3,402.69; Silvercreek, $2,642.26; Spring Valley, $2,380.85.

FATHER OF MURDER VICTIM ACCUSED OF COLUMBUS CRIME

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—First-degree murder charges were filed today against John Francisco in connection with the death of his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Francisco Edgington, 19-year-old girl, bride, who, according to Coroner Murphy, was brutally murdered in her one-room apartment here last Tuesday morning.

Francisco is at large. He was reported to be in Dayton yesterday, but detectives, who made a hurried trip to that city, could not locate him.

Detectives Robert McCall, who filed the charges, declared that all evidence points to the father as the slayer.

Mrs. Edgington, the wife of Lawrence Edgington, 21, a $22-a-week factory employe, was found murdered in bed. She had been beaten with a milkbottle, a piece of which was found behind her. Her throat had been slashed.

Francisco, McCall alleged, had often threatened members of his family, and he is said to be wanted by Dayton police on a forgery charge.

NEW REDS CRASH OUT LONG BLOWS

ORLANDO, Fla., March 7.—Manager Dan Howley of the Cincinnati Reds was a little more heartened today over the prospects of having a hard-hitting team to send into the National League race this year.

As John Heydler, president of the National League looked on yesterday, Harry Hellmann, Bob Meusel and Tony Cuccinello lifted four homers over the fence of Finken Field. Cuccinello, from the American Association Columbus team, contributed two of the four-baggers. Stripp, another former Columbus man, bounced several drives off the fence. Allen, Webb and Walker also busted some fence boards.

Howley sent his pitchers through a long drill yesterday and the infielders were coached in catching short outfield flies.

Senate Oil Lobbyist Reveals Source of Funds

Wirt Franklin, of Ardmore, Okla., president of the Independent Oil Producers' Association, appeared before the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee and revealed his activities in lobbying for a tariff on oil, for which his association is said to have raised large sums of money for use in obtaining passage of the bill.

REVERSE VERDICT AGAINST EDITORS

CLEVELAND, O., March 7.—The court of appeals today reversed the contempt of court sentences imposed upon Louis B. Seltzer, editor, and Carlton K. Matson, editorial writer of the Cleveland Press, last summer by Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther. The opinion reversing Judge Walther was written by Chief Justice Willis Vickery. Judges Manuel Levine and John J. Sullivan concurred.

Judge Walther was scored in the opinion for sitting as trial judge in the contempt case against the newspapermen. The opinion charged the judge with "abusing his discretion."

EAST END NEWS

MRS. JAMES HARRIS Correspondent 91-R Tel.

There will be special services at the Third Baptist Church all day Sunday.

9:30 a. m.—Bible School. You are invited.

10:45 a. m.—Worship and sermon. Following the morning's message the ordinance of the Lord's supper will be administered.

At 3:00 p. m. the ordination of deacons will take place. Rev. A. L. Deoley of the Zion Baptist Church will preach the ordination sermon. Rev. M. L. Dunnington of Springfield, will offer the ordination prayer. Rev. F. M. Liggins of the Middle-Run Baptist Church will present the Bible. Rev. A. M. Howe, will deliver the charge to candidates and church. Rev. James H. Harris, will extend the hand of welcome and fellowship. The Clifton choir and chorus will furnish the music for the ordination services. Other pastors and their congregations will be present. A cordial invitation to the public.

6:30 p. m.—B. Y. P. U. This service will be of great inspiration and uplift as usual.

7:45 p. m.—Worship and sermon. The retiring pastor will preach at both services. This day has been set apart by the church for a special financial effort in the interest of the pastor's back salary. It is kindly urged that each member do his best. Friends are asked to aid in what ever way and as best they can. Let us all pray that the Holy Spirit may stamp with approval the services.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Third M. E. Church, E. Market St., will convene Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Our district Supt., the Rev. I. Penn will deliver the message. Everybody invited to hear this able speaker.

The Lend-a-Hand Society met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Cora Johnson, E. Market St. The regular routine of business the hostess served a refreshment course.

Mrs. George Maxwell, E. Main St., who has been with her husband, the Rev. George Maxwell, who is pastoring in Newark, O.

Curry spoke at length on a proposition to take care of the foreign missionary work in Siberia under the management of Miss Sarah Williamson, missionary now on the field. Mrs. Lucy Howe, former president of the Dorcas Missionary Society of the Third Baptist Church was honor guest. Mrs. Howe will leave very soon to join her husband, who has accepted the pastorate of the Tabernacle Baptist Church in Pittsburgh, Pa. She spoke in a very commendable manner to the society.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Porter, Taylor St., received a telegram Thursday afternoon from Mrs. Porter's brother, the Rev. O. M. Locust of Topeka, Kan., that the Calvary Baptist Church of which he is the pastor, had been destroyed by fire.

Try This 3-Minute Bath

No time today for stubborn soaps that lather stingily. We strenuous moderns need this amazing magic soap which bubbles into instant lather in any water—hot or cold—hard or soft! Truly a marvelous accomplishment—a finer soap made by a secret process from costly, mild cocoanut oil. And this gentle oil lathers twice as quick as old soap oils—flashing into great handfuls of thick, rich lather the instant it touches water!

What a joy for your skin, too—how soothing the bland, gentle cocoanut oil which leaves skin velvety soft and smooth. Yet doctors say it actually destroys deadly germs. And hard-working men tell us this magic soap cleans up grime and grease double-quick!

See how different this modern soap. Ask today for the big, white, oversize cake that costs only 10c.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Every prudent man dealth with knowledge: but a fool layeth open his folly. A wicked messenger falleth into mischief: but a faithful ambassador is health.—Proverbs, xlii, 16, 17.

WHY NOT MAKE THE CHANGE?

If the friendship of Japan for this country can be materially enhanced, and the feasibility of arriving at a naval understanding with Tokyo increased by revising the American immigration laws to put the Nipponese on a quota basis, the discussions reported to be going on between Senator David A. Reed and Tsubono Matsudaira should be encouraged. The senator and the ambassador can, of course, accomplish nothing tangible or formal. Neither of them is in a position to represent his government. But an inter-change of views may be helpful later on in bringing about a reconsideration of an American government action that may very well be reconsidered.

The number of Japanese who would be admitted to the United States under a regular quota allowance corresponding to those in force for other countries of the world would be so small that they would mean nothing whatever as a part of the whole population of the United States. At the most, only a few hundreds would come in each year. But the appeasement of wounded feeling in Japan which would result might be of immense moment, and might have a material effect later on in matters affecting some very vital interests of the United States.

At present Japan is friendly to this country with a reservation. Why not remove the reservation, which means nothing to us from a practical standpoint, but which is a constant cause of smothered resentment in the island empire across the Pacific? Japan has always dealt fairly and even generously with America in making and keeping engagements. She is worth having for a whole-hearted friend.

THE GREAT HUNGER

Joseph Fort Newton, magazine writer contributes a message upon what he terms the "great hunger," something, which many claim, is inherent in all of us. Newton says:

"Even the moral life, with its awful law and its perilous liberty, is not all that we find in these little, inflexible human souls. There is something else, something elusive, ineluctable, irresistible, unconscious of unsatisfied ever; something free and flaming—a passion that runs beyond duty, beyond righteousness, in quest of goodness. It is linked with our love of beauty; it is akin to poetry, if by poetry we mean 'distance, loneliness and singing'; a sense of the Beyond by which we know that the horizons are not garden walls and the stars are more than lights in a cottage window.

"A wild, sad joy, an unutterable sigh lying in the depths of the soul, one hears its breathing through the literature and liturgy of man; a loneliness that wakes with him in the morning, a wistfulness that haunts him at eventide. What art may hope to ensure this thing that stirs us deeper than any words can tell a mystery, a hunger, and a divine desire."

The London conference will promote the cause of disarmament or will prove pretty conclusively that those who are trying to bring it about are chasing an elusive rainbow, and the thing for the United States to do is to make itself ready to meet any emergency which may arise in a perfectly mad world.

The number of rum runners that are disappearing in the Detroit river reveals how thin the ice is upon which this illicit traffic skates.

An earthquake in southern California stopped a local newspaper's presses. They were probably printing a story to the effect that southern California doesn't have earthquakes.

In repealing its new law allowing homicide as a remedy for marital infidelity, the Mexican government indicates a return to sanity.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

MUST HAVE SOMETHING DIFFERENT

If the church, of whatever creed, is to command the respect and confidence of the world, it will have to have something more than ordinary service to offer. It will have to offer something different and distinctly better than other organizations have. The idea is well expressed by Dr. Trexler, high official of the Lutheran church, who says:

"The church rightly claims that she has powers and hidden resources which belong to no other group of men. The justification of this claim, however, lies only in the results which are here. When the church produces finer fibre in character, when she accomplishes miracles among men otherwise hopeless and when she effects crusades of which no one else would dream—then she gives evidence of her unique mission in the world and reveals what she can do in the strength of her unique resources.

"Men and women will flock to the place where they can have the resources which no other institution gives."

STARTING SOMETHING

President Hoover, on his latest birthday, made the acquaintance of a young mountaineer. The boy had never heard of Lindbergh. That made the president think. Here was the ignorance of isolation not the ignorance of a blank mind. So the president gave the word to provide a school. Today it is in operation. Hutchins, head of Berea, greatest mountain college in America, found the teacher. There are 40 pupils in the Virginia hills where the president has his camp. Here is an idea translated into action. This is thinking something and starting something. Many of us think things. Few of us start.

SPORT

The normal and complete man likes some kind of a game. He may not be interested in many games, but if there isn't one sport that reaches and holds his attention there is something gone out of him. He is missing more than he can ever realize. The love of people for clean sport is not a trivial matter. That love goes deep and takes hold on character.

Able Philadelphia business men acted wisely the other day when they awarded to Connie Mack, great figure in baseball, the Bok prize for having performed for Philadelphia the most outstanding service in the past year. Connie Mack properly travels in brilliant company. Other winners of the $10,000 award are: Dr. Russell H. Conwell, founder of Temple University; Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia orchestra; Samuel J. Fleisher, founder of the Graphic Sketch club; Dr. Charles Curtis Harrison, late provost of the University of Pennsylvania; Samuel Yellin, iron master; Dr. Chevalier Jackson, perfecter of the technique for the use of bronchoscopes; the Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, rector of the Valley Forge Memorial chapel; Eli Kir Price, chairman of the building committee of the Philadelphia Art Museum.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

How much power has the king of England? Can he influence legislation? What are his duties during a parliamentary session? How is he paid?

The king of England has about the same power as a flag, and his duties are much the same insofar as the actual machinery of government is concerned. His parliamentary task is limited to opening sessions with a "speech from the throne," but his ministers write it for him. Nominally he appoints his premier, but he must choose the leader of the majority parliamentary party. Nevertheless, he is in contact with all the country's "big men," and thus possesses an influence over many of them, especially if they are susceptible to social pressure, which he commands absolutely. He owns estates which yield him a handsome income and receives a variable allowance for what may be described as "expenses," but is not regularly salaried. His income is as uncertain to guess as any other rich man's.

Mabel Normand

Who was leading lady in a motion picture called "Mickie"—Mabel Normand or Violet Mesereau? It was Mabel Normand.

Combinations

Do business mergers lessen competition? Why are there so many? Are they desirable or otherwise? Mergers do lessen competition. That is their object, and explains why there are so many. A single management is cheaper than several; a single plant is cheaper than several smaller plants. Supposedly, efficiency is enhanced. Profits are concentrated. If the combined concerns share their economies with their customers, by cutting prices, they reduce the cost of living. Some economists believe that, having ended competition, they will increase prices instead. No one knows yet. Government regulation is suggested, to compel them to be reasonable, but skeptics fear they will be too powerful to regulate. The whole question, both ways, is open to argument.

Theocracy

What does "theocratic trend" mean, as applied to the government?

A theocracy is "a government recognizing the immediate sovereignty of God," or "a government by ecclesiastics," an ecclesiastic being "one officially set apart for the service of the church."

Spanish

What is the correct pronunciation of the name, Jose Mojica?—the opera star who sang with Mary Garden last year.

Jose, meaning Joseph, is pronounced approximately "Ho-say," with the accent on the last syllable. In strictly correct Spanish the "j" has a guttural sound not reproducible in English. Mojica is "Mo-hee-ka," with the accent on the second syllable, and the same guttural "j."

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Twenty-four young women were loaned by First National and Vitaphone to appear in the Broadway production, "Fifty Million Frenchmen." At the end of the first three months 15 of the Hollywood Haydens refused to renew and climbed aboard the Twentieth Century headed for the land of sunshine, canned tomatoes, theology, chiropractors and Rosicrucians. The Nifty Nine who remain have personal reasons for lingering; but they, too, say when the present theatrical season closes they're going back to the flickers and the fies, to roister in their natural and joyous inheritance of unconcern.

They don't like Broadway.

"SHOWBOY"

The term "chorus boy" is in disfavor with the bulgy-browed leads of the ensemble. In a recent picture, after a spirited soprano protest, the problem was solved by contracts which read: "To play the part of a showboy."

CULTS

Man's greatest asset is his ability to kid himself into a philosophic frame of mind while smarting under the disparagements of fortune.

Evidence of this is presented in the sudden epidemic in New York Ticker Tumble. The majority of cults—an aftermath of the late these pivot on the philosophy that money isn't everything in the world; that yachts, motor cars, country houses, duplex apartments, fur coats and pearl necklaces are delusions and snares; that contentment is better than wealth and that kind hearts are more than coronets.

Senator Indifferent Over His Plan To Make Liquor Buyers Puntshable

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, is not bestirring himself very vigorously in behalf of his proposition to make liquor buyers as punishable as bootleggers.

The proposal is before congress and the senator says he considers the idea which it embodies a logical one, but he is not hustling for votes to put it in effect. Having launched it, apparently he feels that he has done enough, at least for the present.

Somewhat curiously, the wets rather than the dries are disappointed at the Lone Star statesman's air of indifference.

The wets are belatedly sold on the theory that prohibition can best be made unpopular, if at all, by adjusting the law so as to catch victims in shoals. If they had their way, the Sheppard plan undoubtedly would go through a-kiting.

The dries are the folks who regard it askance.

There are politicians who frankly hint that Senator Sheppard himself would not have suggested penalizing liquor buying if he had not thought it would take better among dries generally.

Of course this is guesswork. Naturally the senator does not admit it.

Still, it is a fact that the dries disagree on a couple of important questions in a fashion that must be extremely embarrassing to a lawmaker whose stock in trade consists so largely of the prohibition issue as the author of the Eighteenth amendment's.

For one thing: What really is the status of prohibition enforcement?

Several of the most strenuous dries in public life take the position that it has broken down utterly, and clamor for an investigation.

Notable among them is Senator William J. Harris of Georgia.

In certain respects Senators Harris and Sheppard find themselves similarly situated. Both come up this year for renomination—election, on the Democratic ticket being a mere formality in Georgia and Texas alike. Both must recall, perhaps with a trace of uneasiness, that they supported the humid Mr. Smith in 1928 in a couple of ultra-arid states. It may be only a coincidence that both felt the urge to do something a trifle dryer than usual with the 1930 primaries just coming on.

Senator Harris' method was to deliver a smashing attack on enforcement—and keep it up.

Senator Sheppard's was to propose the prosecution of liquor buyers, as well as sellers—and then lie low.

The Sheppard policy of doing just enough, and no more, did not appeal to Senator Harris, who is a pugnacious man. The Harris policy, of tearing things wide open, did not appeal to Senator Sheppard, who is a cautious one.

Unfortunately (for Senator Sheppard) the Harris offensive proved popular.

Fretted by it (for it conflicted with his program) the Texan tried to pooh-pooh the whole thing, saying prohibition has worked very perity most of this "defense mechanism" will evaporate.

A philosophic calm that has taken all sorts of discipline to perfect, can be dissipated over night and rendered null and void, by one darned good tip on the stock market.

well and needs no investigating. Senator Harris refused to be hushed.

Senators Borah of Idaho, Brookhart of Iowa, Norris of Nebraska, and Wheeler of Montana liked the sound of the uproar he was creating and joined in.

The rumrump is highly distasteful to Senator Sheppard, who, in the meantime, is having trouble with his own plan.

The Anti-Saloon League does not approve of it a bit.

As is well known, the league always has opposed making liquor buyers subject to the penalties of the dry law, on the ground that their testimony is needed to convict vendors.

The Texas senator has, indeed, the backing of dries like Bishop James Cannon Jr., and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who have other affiliations closer than their relationship to the Anti-Saloon League, but it is pre-eminently undesirable for a dry senator to have the league against him, for all that.

Not that anyone expects Senator Sheppard to have serious difficulty in his home state.

Yet the mix-up goes to show how the aftermath of the Houston convention still gums the political cards.

DINNER

Lima Beans with Chops

Have you ever tried eggs with sausage in place of the usual ham or bacon and eggs? Here is the recipe. The menu was planned for three.

Today's Recipes

Baked Eggs with Sausage—Prick six sausages all over, place in a baking dish, bake until they began to crisp (about fifteen minutes). Pour off the fat, cut sausages in inch lengths. Arrange around the edge of the dish, slip in three eggs, pour two tablespoons melted butter over and bake six to ten minutes. Serve in baking dish very hot.

Butterscotch Tarts—Cream one cup brown sugar and one-eighth (one-fourth cup) pound of butter. Beat into this one egg, one and one-half cups of raisins and one teaspoon of vanilla. Place this filling in tart shells made of rich pie crust. Bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes.

Lima Beans with Chops—One-half pound dried Lima beans, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon mustard, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon finely chopped onion, one-fourth cup tomato catsup, one pound pork chops. Cook until they are almost tender. Season with salt, sugar, onion, mustard and catsup. Pour into a large flat baking dish. Add liquid if necessary to cover the beans. Then place the pork chops, cut through the fat edge to prevent curling, on top of the beans. When the pork chops have browned on one side in the hot oven, turn them over and reduce the oven to low heat. The slow a half develops a delicious flavor.

EYES UPON THEM

It is one thing to be laughed with, another to be laughed at. But Peter had learned to take a joke on himself, so he didn't lose his temper, but smiled instead.

"What's it all about, Dragon-Fly?" asked he. "I take it that I have been here by the pool before, but when?"

"Just a short while ago," chuckled Dragon-Fly. "What were you doing here? Watching the circus performers?" Peter gasped, but Dragon-Fly continued.

"I always feel restless after I have stayed quiet just so long. When the performance was over I thought I'd like to go for a fly. So I took you for a round trip through the sky and back again. We are now almost at the same spot from which we started. See that flat, sandy space right behind you? That is the ring where the performance took place. And this clump of fern is the very one I told you was my old home where I spent my days as a larva."

Peter's eyes were wide open in amazement.

"Sure enough, now that you point out the landmarks I remember them all," said he. "Well, it only goes to prove that a human is more sure of himself on the ground than in the air. High flying mixed me up. Say, Dragon-Fly, am I seeing things?"

"Ever since we landed here I have thought I spied eyes peering through those reeds on the other side of the pool. Every time I look away and then back again, there seem to be more eyes. Of course I may be all wrong. It may be only my imagination playing tricks upon me. But things happen so quickly in insectland that it doesn't pay to take chances. I'd rather you laughed at me for a silly, than keep quiet and let danger creep up upon us."

"Right!" shrilled Dragon-Fly. "It always pays to be on the safe side. However, we're in no danger this time. Those eyes belong to my brothers and my sisters, my uncles and my aunts. For all I know some of the eyes may be in the head of my granddaddy. Curiosity has brought the whole family out to see what I'm up to!"

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Visceroptosis
"Dear Doctor: Please explain fully the term visceroptosis. Very important."
MRS. G."

Analyzing the word visceroptosis tells its literal meaning, Mrs. G. The first part of the word is taken from the stomach, and intestines. In these conditions, the ligaments of the abdominal organs have been stretched so that they are in a lower position than normal. These ptoses are more apt to occur in undernourished, greatly emaciated individuals, and especially those who have long maintained wrong standing and sitting positions. Lowering of the transverse colon (that portion of the large intestine that crosses the abdomen in the upper part) may be due to a dragging down caused by accumulated fecal matter through prolonged constipation. The transverse colon and the stomach also, may be dragged down by accumulations of excess fat in the omentum, a large apron-like membrane that is attached to the lower edge of the stomach and enfolds the transverse colon.

Not so much importance is now attached to a fallen stomach as was formerly, since it is known that it is normal for the organ to be much lower in some than in others.

The relief from these conditions comes from correcting the emaciation or overweight, exercises to strengthen the abdominal wall and to help keep normal position, and the use of a fitted abdominal support which is put on while lying down.

For those who need instructions on how to gain or lose weight, we have a pamphlet on the subject. We also have an article outlining some splendid abdominal exercises called the Tummy Ten. See column rules for obtaining these.

"Dear Doctor: I am too tall. Whenever I meet, it is always I who am taller. I'm quite young, in my senior class at high school. I feel I am overweight, but according to records I am normal. It really is aggravating to go out with a boy who is shorter than you. Isn't there any way out?"
"MISS D."

No, dear girl, there is nothing you can do about your height. Just be happy that you have good health and an opportunity to get an education, and forget it. There are lots worse handicaps than being tall! Suppose you had some real deformity that some boys and girls have to bear throughout their lives? Remember it is best for boys and girls to be some over the average weight than under. (If you are abnormally tall and have other disturbances of growth, it may be that the pituitary gland, which is situated in the skull, is disordered. Have a check-up by a competent physician who will have an X-ray taken of your head to determine this and give you appropriate treatment.)

A. S.: Stop worrying. We have an article on the subject you speak of which will help you. See column rules for obtaining this.

Tomorrow: Gaining Weight.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following "mail charge to help cover cost of printing and handling" for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: It seems as though most of us have a little bit different problem to solve in life," writes a correspondent.

Sure enough. We always are sure our problem is very different from those of others. Probably, inasmuch as there is a grain of difference in every two things in the universe, even in grains of sand, no two problems are alike.

This writer's problem is somewhat unique to the column, although many of my readers will doubtless recognize it as their problem, too, or at least, something very similar.

"Ten years ago," she writes, "I married a man I believed I loved. We have two nice boys. First we got along very well, but as different problems arose, trouble began, especially when I objected to my husband being all boss. I thought I had as good a right to my ideas as he to his. For instance, I was for saving and buying a home and he was for buying an automobile."

"He ruled the day nearly every time. Whenever I objected to his ideas he would get mad and be very mean to me, and usually try to strike me with anything he could get his hands on."

"I thought, true enough I had married him, but I didn't see why I should be married to ALL his ideas."

"Well, time went along and about five years ago I began to sense that my love for him was changing. I like him, but do not love him like I did at first. I believe he has killed my love for him. I think he senses some of his ideas were mistakes, and regrets them."

"Of late he has been so much better, seems to love me, gives me his pay and would do anything for me, hugs and kisses me, but somehow I can't return his love. I try to when he is around me. Sometimes I feel like I was getting stone cold. I don't like to be like this. It worries me and I am afraid in time he may tire of my coldness and turn to someone else. I would be glad to follow any good advice."

I don't believe your love for your husband is wholly lost, my dear. If you can still worry for fear you will lose him. After ten years of married life one usually does not feel the same thrill—at least not all the time—that one did at first. One has pretty well settled down, especially after wrangling as you two have, according to your letter, for the past ten years.

Looking back on these years, don't you think you might have been a bit more diplomatic in your management of your husband? That bossy type of man is usually around the finger of some young person who apparently lets him have his own way, but who really gives him his head only to his undoing, so that he can plainly see how foolish he is and give her her way.

It looks as if you had done this to a certain extent, for you say he apparently has decided that some of his ideas weren't "so hot," as the young folk say, and is willing now to let you go ahead with the spending of the money. See that your expenditures are wise and that you make a start on the home. I am sure that would be one thing you would never forget.

Of course such childish behavior as your husband formerly indulged in when he threw things at you, etc., would naturally discourage your affection. Don't try to force your affection. Be as affectionate as you can be naturally, and don't make his mistake of trying to be "the boss" just because he is inclined now to give in. Plan things with him, and see if in time the old love won't come back.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

IT is quite possible that vogue for long hair will gain in popularity within the next few months. On the other hand, my coiffure artists assure me that in New York, Chicago, London and Paris, they are kept busy creating new, swaggy, bobs and soft, feminine coiffures, which are not only suited to the charm of the new gowns, but the convenience of short hair. So—who can prophesy?

The lines of hair cut and coiffure are important—not only to the face itself, but to the entire effect. In all the lines surrounding the face the ideal is to give the impression of a face as near to the perfect oval as can be obtained.

The method of dressing the hair materially affects the contour of the face. If the hair is parted in the middle, the outline of the face is divided in the center and an apparent width results. It is on the other hand a style much to be recommended to the woman with the long, thin face. For to the face, or a face where the features are irregular, the center part is very trying. A side part makes the face appear much longer, and if the hair is parted definitely to one side, it gives the greatest effect of length. A parting directly in line with the beginning of the eyebrow, slightly further to the side if the eyebrows grow too close together, gives a slenderizing line to the broad face, but very bad for the young, long face. Bangs are good for the round forehead makes the face appear longer and narrower. Remember, however, that it reveals any defect there is in your skin.

If your face is long you can comb your hair off the ears to lend apparent width, otherwise you will be wise to avoid this very trying fashion.

Waving presents a problem in "lines," too, although you may

CHURCH CELEBRATES 120TH ANNIVERSARY

PROGRAM MARKS FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN BIRTHDAY HERE

Rededication Service Also Planned; Dr. J. Knox Montgomery Will Speak; Congregation Has Occupied Four Church Edifices

By R. A. HIGGINS

WHEN the first settlers penetrated the wildernesses of Ohio to that section of the Miami Valley which was later to become Greene County, the church came with them.

During those trying days of hardships, deprivations and sacrifices, when men and women of courage and fortitude were hewing a new civilization out of virgin territory, the church lent them its moral support and assistance.

They early planted the cross of Christianity in the wilderness and even before Greene County was organized in 1803, some of these settlers were holding religious services in their homes.

And thus it came about that in the year 1810, there was formed here in Xenia, the countyseat of the new county, a congregation of the Associate Reformed Church which later came to be known as the First United Presbyterian Church. Sunday this congregation will celebrate the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of its existence with appropriate ceremonies in which Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, New Concord, will be the principal speaker.

The Rev. Robert Armstrong, earliest minister of record in the county, had organized branches of this faith at Massies Creek and at Sugarcreek, which antedate the Xenia congregation, but history verifies the claim of the First Church to be the first within the new county seat. Preceding 1810 supply ministers and missionaries ministered to the spiritual wants of the faithful but it was in 1810 that the Rev. John Steele was delegated by the Kentucky Presbytery to organize the congregation and to moderate a congregational meeting at Xenia and to preside at the ordination of the elders of the new congregation.

Upon the filing of incorporation papers, the congregation decided to be known as the Associate Reformed Church of Xenia. Before this the Rev. Mr. Steele had visited this community, even as early as 1798, and his ministrations to members of that flock, 1811 and the Rev. Adam Rankin and the Rev. William Baldrige were appointed to preach at Xenia and in the following year the pulpit of the infant church was supplied by the Rev. James McCord, who had begun his career as a law student in the office of Henry Clay before turning to the ministry, and by the Rev. Mr. Wallace.

The church extended its first call to a pastor to the Rev. Mr. McCord, but he had transferred his connection to the Presbyterian Church and, disappointed in its first choice, the congregation continued to receive ministrations by supplies during the years of 1813, 1814, 1815 and 1816. Among the ministers thus serving were the Reverends Craig, Risque and McFarland. But in 1817 the congregation issued a formal call to the Rev. John Steele, who had founded the church and he accepted and moved to Xenia as its first resident pastor. He continued as its pastor until 1836 and upon his resignation moved to Oxford, where he died the following year.

The congregation then was without a pastor until in June 1838, when the Rev. James R. Bonner accepted the pastorate, serving the church until April 10, 1845, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Robert D. Harper. The Rev. Mr. Harper continued in the pulpit until 1868 when he retired from that church and transferred to the Presbyterian denomination.

It was during his pastorate however, in 1858, that a union was effected between the Associate and the Associate Reformed Churches and they became the United Presbyterian Churches of Xenia. The Associate Reformed congregation became the First United Presbyterian Church and the Associate Church became the Second Church. The first general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church was held in the First Church here in 1859.

The Rev. W. G. Moorehead, D. D., accepted a call to the First U. P. Church in 1871 following missionary service in Italy and he continued as its pastor until 1875 when he resigned to become pastor of the Fourth U. P. Church of Allegheny, Pa., and was succeeded here by the Rev. Thomas H. Hanna.

When the Rev. Mr. Hanna resigned to accept a call to Monmouth, Ill., in 1880 he was succeeded in 1881 by the Rev. Joseph H. Wright, who served in that capacity until his death on March 20, 1889. The Rev. W. B. Barr came to the Xenia church in August, 1891, as its pastor, remaining only a little more than a year, and he was succeeded by the Rev. R. G. Ramsey in September, 1893, but who resigned in February, 1901. The Rev. S. E. Martin succeeded to the pulpit in April 6, 1902 and he continued in the pastorate until May, 1913, when he was succeeded by the Rev. D. D. Dodds, D. D. in July 1914. Dr. Dodds served the church until 1923 when he accepted an urgent call from the United Presbyterian Church at Oakmont, Pa., and in September of that year the present pastor, the Rev. James P. Lytle, came to Xenia from the Second U. P. Church of New York City.

The Rev. Mr. Lytle was born at Hanover, Ind., and finished his preparatory school work at Hanover College. He entered Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., where he received his A. B. degree in 1912. He then entered Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., graduating in May, 1915. He also holds a degree of master of arts from the graduate college of Princeton, taken in the history department. Before his graduation he received a call to the pastorate of the Second U. P. Church of New York City and came from that church. The Rev. Mr. Lytle has served as moderator of the presbytery of Xenia and is a member of the senate of Monmouth College. He has been named a commissioner to the meeting of the General Assembly of the U. P. Church at Des Moines, Iowa, next May. He is president of the Xenia Ministerial Association now and is a member of the Kiwanis Club.

The removal of the Xenia Theological Seminary to St. Louis reduced the membership of the First Church somewhat. When the congregation celebrated its centennial in 1910, there were 310 members but of that number, only about sixty are found on the rolls of the congregation today. The membership now numbers 265 people. Of the eleven ruling elders at the time of the centennial in 1910, seven have entered into their last rest.

It is a far cry from the first worship in the private and humble dwellings of parishioners nearly a century and a quarter ago to the present beautiful and comfortable church properties. The people of the First U. P. Church have had four houses of worship. The first "meeting house" was erected in 1811 at the corner of Detroit and Union Sts., and stood there until only a few years ago, when it was razed. The building was a little brick structure with two front doors and its pews were roughly hewn from logs.

The congregation soon grew beyond the comforts of this small building and the second "meeting house" was a brick building built on E. Church St. approximately on the site of the present Central High School building. After it was abandoned for church purposes, it was known for years as the "old pork house" having been used by the butcher, Samuel Gambol who was the owner of a part of the land, later known as the Roberts Estate and donated the site for the church.

The second "meeting house" had its high box pulpit, coming up almost to the minister's shoulders when standing and when he sat he was completely obscured from view. The "box" for the preacher was also partly concealed. It is reported that the minister of the day delivered two long sermons on Sunday with an intermission for luncheon. Many of the faithful of the period lived in the country and those who had no horses on which to ride to worship, were forced to make the long tramp on foot. In these occasions it was customary to carry one's shoes until near the church when they were donned for the service, thus effecting a saving in shoe leather and shortening the torture to cramped feet.

In 1848 the congregation built its third church at E. Market St., and Columbus St., and this edifice still stands and is used by the congregation of the First A. M. E. Church. The building was erected at an original cost of $6,625 and when completed, there remained a debt of $2,000. To meet this deficit the trustees were authorized to rent the pews, the rental ranging from $45 down to $10 each. When this church was abandoned the stone lettered with the name and date was removed and imbedded in the east wall of the present church building. The church was used during seven pastorates, being in use for sixty years. It was remodelled in 1888 when discussion of erection of a new church was abandoned and was in use until the congregation decided to rebuild on E. Market St. on its present location in 1907. The new church was dedicated April 10, 1910, its total cost being $32,000, not including the pipe organ, which was the gift of friends.

During recent years many improvements have been made to the church property, not the least of which was the erection of a new parsonage on E. Church St., adjoining the church on the rear, in 1925. The parsonage was built at a cost of almost $12,000. In 1928 a new roof was placed under the title of the church at a cost of about $1,500 and during the past year a furnace has been added.

It is fitting now however, that the latest improvement has just been completed—the rededication of the auditorium and the Sunday School rooms. The color scheme carried out is almost identical with the original design, pleasing and restful to the eye and conducive to reverence and worship. Because of the rededication of the church the anniversary celebration Sunday is combined with a rededication program.

The growth and progress of the congregation has been contemporaneous with the growth of Xenia, whose people it has served well during all its years.

EFFECTIVE RELIEF FOR WIDESPREAD ILL

Millions Enjoy It as Daily Diet

Constipation is an ancient ill. Modern diets with their soft foods have caused it to become about the most common ailment known to mankind. Lack of roughage in the diet is usually the cause. Add bulk to the diet and constipation disappears.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is bulk. Millions now eat it regularly. They are no longer subject to the evils of this dreaded disease, which is the source of many other physical ailments.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In addition, it supplies your body with iron which enriches the blood, building strength and the glowing color of health. With milk or fruit juices, or in many cooked foods, it brings important vitamins into the diet.

Use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and it will never be necessary again to take pills and drugs that often create dangerous habits.

Two tablespoons daily will prevent and relieve constipation—in recurring cases, with every meal. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious—and effective! Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

TWIN-IGNITION MEANS—

Greater Power, Greater Smoothness, Extraordinary Economy

BECAUSE two different motor cars are alike in price, it does not follow that they are also alike in quality, value or performance. There is always a best, and if you are looking for it, drive a Nash Twin-Ignition Eight or Six. They are the only cars in their price field which offer the superiority of Twin-Ignition performance.

¶ Twin-Ignition (two spark plugs, two simultaneous sparks, per cylinder, instead of one) produces smoother, more thorough combustion and consequently a smoother, more vigorous flow of power. You can feel the difference. You will know immediately what you have been missing, driving a car with single ignition.

¶ Other "400" features of superior performance and value are Bijur centralized chassis lubrication; lifetime-lubricated springs, encased in steel spring covers; built-in, automatic radiator shutters; and Duplate non-shatterable plate glass in all windows, doors and windshields (no extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Eight—optional at slight extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Six and Single Six).

Sunday—Morning, 9:30. Bible School. A class for every one, a teacher for every class. International and Graded Lessons. If you are not a regular attendant at some other school, try ours.
10:30. worship. This day has been set aside as our annual every-member canvass. All members of the church and Bible School are urged to be present. Your presence at church will save the committee a trip to your home. The pastor will give a brief discourse on "What to do on the First Day of the Week." The service will close with the celebration of the Lord's Memorial Supper.
Evening 7:30. Union services at First U. P. Church.
Wednesday, March 12—7:30 p. m. Regular mid-week prayer meeting. All the Christian churches are thinking of Pentecost, this being the season of the 1900th anniversary of that event. As fitting the season we are taking up the study of the Acts of the Apostles and this week we study Acts, Chapters 1 and 2. Everyone is urged to read these two chapters prior to the meeting.
The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

Dr. Charles Stelzle in company with 100 selected ministers went on record by saying, "The church offers a moral foundation upon which commerce may be established. It offers to men a center of human interest, an opportunity for unselfish service, the loftiest personal ideals, the finest fellowship, the greatest moral adventure in human experience."

"The church offers a program for personal living, a social passion that will build a new social order, a vital contact with the great elements of culture, a faith that destroys all fear, a source of power unparalleled, a place for leadership for every man who possesses a real ability, an assurance of ultimate victory."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Jesus was a master teacher in that he knew how to present the same subject under different aspects and thus threw light upon it from different points of view.

Vs. 31, 32. "Another parable set he before them, saying, The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field; which indeed is less than all seeds; but when it is grown it is greater than the herbs and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches of it." This parable shows us the growth of the local kingdom from small beginnings; the gospel began as a small seed buried in obscurity but it grew in power, marched into Rome, then unhinged the Roman empire and transformed nations into fine civilizations. It is destined to overthrow the armies of the world and bring in a reign of peace on earth.

V. 33. "Another parable spake he unto them; the kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till it was leavened." This parable also teaches the growth of the kingdom from small beginnings but differs in showing how the kingdom grows—it grows quietly within and permeates all our thinking; there is a constraining influence in Christianity that bounds life so that society is unconsciously reformed touching the very motives of men. These two parables also teach that the gospel will be a long slow growth. We need to be patient with Christian progress.

V. 44. "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a treasure hidden in a field which a man found and hid; and in his joy he goeth and selleth all that he hath and buyeth that field." The point of the parable is that the one finding the kingdom gave up all that he had in order that he might obtain a greatly superior treasure; the gospel is the most wonderful treasure and it is a good bargain to give all we have for it.

Vs. 45, 46. "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a merchant seeking goodly pearls; and having found one pearl of great price, he went and sold all that he had and bought it." This teaching in that the man here is a seeker; the best things in the world must be sought; things do not merely happen, man has an important part to perform; man must want to make God first in his life else the kingdom has no meaning to him.

Vs. 47, 48. "Again, the kingdom of God is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea and gathered of every kind which when it was filled, they drew up on the beach; and they sat down and gathered the good into the vessels but the bad they cast out." Here is a suggestion of the church, an organization of believers, receiving all who desire membership, but it is likely that sometimes there are admitted members who are not right with God; there was Judas of the disciples, Ananias and Sapphira the first church at Jerusalem; these cases may be multiplied in history. Only the genuine, that which has great value can be counterfeited. One never heard of mud being counterfeited.

Vs. 49, 50. "So shall it be in the end of the world; the angels shall come forth and sever the wicked from among the righteous and shall cast them into the furnace of the fire; there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth." It is important that every one remember the fact that there shall be a day of reckoning when all records shall be so presented as to reveal each one's character.

Church Forum

How make the most of the local workers' council or the Sunday School Board meeting?
Rev. Charles Brewbaker, general secretary of Sunday School work in the United Brethren Church says: "The program should consist of four periods, worship, business, conference on problems and study or address on some vital topic. A supper may be provided at a minimum price, preceded by a fine social time and followed by the program already indicated. Prospective teachers and officers and members of the training class may be invited to attend.
The period of worship should be carefully prepared for and conducted in a most orderly and dignified manner. Different members of the council may take charge from month to month. This part of the program should take no more than twenty minutes. The business meeting should consist of reports, preferably in written form, from officers of the council. The whole period should not cover more than thirty minutes. The conference on problems gives an opportunity for the workers to present their needs and perplexities. These should have thoughtful consideration and a solution suggested if at all possible. The study period should be made to count greatly in the further preparation of each officer and teacher for his work. One half hour should be given to the discussion of some book, a vital Sunday School topic or a paper presented by a council member. Every effort should be made to put into action the recommendations given at the meetings.

SECRETS IN ROCKEFELLER'S SUCCESS

John D. Rockefeller would never allow himself to worry over criticism and he held steadfastly to the purpose of making his money work. Two incidents in his life furnish proof of this.

Thirty years ago slanderous remarks were being made of him. "John, why don't you answer these slanders?" asked a friend. "Why do you permit people to call you a liar, a hypocrite and a crook?" John D. hesitated a moment, pointed downward to a worm that was wriggling along in their path and replied, "If I step on that worm I will call attention to it. If I ignore it, it will disappear."

Once when he worked ten days hoeing potatoes for a farmer, for which he received $3.50, he arrived at the following decision, "I saved every penny of that money; but it occurred to me that if I'd have saved $50 and had put it out at interest at 7 per cent, the annual interest alone would bring me in as much as I had earned by those ten days of hard labor. So I determined to make money work for me."—D. Carl Yoder.

Burning Religion in Soviet Russia

KIN HASTEN TO TAFT'S BEDSIDE

CHICAGO SUBMITS SKETCHES OF 1933 WORLD'S FAIR

While a band of Russian children look on, these roaring flames consume 5,000 ikons collected by the Soviet anti-religion fanatics in the frenzied march against church, mosque and synagogue. The ikons were collected mostly from workers' dormitories and homes and their burning became the occasion of a gigantic fete at Bogobouisk, which was attended by 15,000 men, women and children.

Carrying Communism to Wall Street

Bearing John Porter, recently released army deserter, high on their shoulders, these vehement Communists are assembled at the Battery, ready for a descent upon Wall Street, New York City. Notice the lurid banners martyring the New Bedford, Mass., man who has just served eighteen months for desertion from the U. S. Army. The demonstration assumed serious proportions at the busy intersection of Broad and Wall Streets, and it was necessary for police to use their fists upon the crowd before it could be dispersed.

Enjoying Their Afternoon Tea

The young ladies who wield note-books and typewriters at the Naval Disarmament Conference take time out to get better acquainted over the inevitable tea table. The English secretaries and stenographers acted as hostesses to their sisters from other countries. Nobody appears to be worrying about global tonnage or armored categories. The gathering is in the famous Crosby Hall in the quaint district of Chelsea, London.

Robert R. Taft, son of William Howard Taft, former President and Chief Justice, as he arrived at the Taft home in the Capital from Cincinnati, to be at the bedside of his father, whose condition is reported beyond recovery.

Sarah B. Mowell, a bank clerk, will not face "poison pen" charges in this session of the U. S. District Court, Camden, N. J., because of the precarious state of her health. Walter J. Burnett, refrigerator salesman, is said to have been the recipient of the letters. All the papers have been impounded. Miss Mowell was acquitted several months ago on charges of sending similar letters to Mrs. Fraux von Moschzisker.

Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, daughter, and Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the only man in the United States who has been both president and chief justice, was taken as they arrived at his bedside, recently, when the doctors announced that his strength was fast leaving him.

These architect's sketches and map give a general idea of the World's Fair, to be held in Chicago, in 1933. Top, the main facade of the administration building which is to be the headquarters and "advance" signboard of the exposition; center, map of the arrangement of buildings which will lie along the shore of Lake Michigan, some of them on filled-in islands, extending two and one-half miles; below, the Travel and Transport building, which is to be metal and windowless. A floor free from obstructions will be provided by supporting the dome with "sky hooks." By eliminating windows the lighting can be kept under constant control in the building which is to be a quarter of a mile long.

Among Celebs at Battle of Miami

These two couples in center have been before your eyes for a long time. They are, left to right, Mrs. Babe Ruth, the Bambino, George and Mrs. McManus. They are pictured watching the "Battle of the Big Bust" at Miami, Fla., where Jack Sharkey was awarded the decision when Phil Scott, the British champ, refused to carry on.

Schoolgirl's Hollywood Dreams Shattered

RECUPERATING AT MIAMI BEACH

Rosy dreams of Hollywood came no nearer realization than the drab room of a Fitchburg, Mass., hotel, when Helen Holbrook (above), 17-year-old student at the exclusive Whittier School, ran away from the institution with three girl friends. They were turned over to relatives by police and private detectives.

Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, in the patio of the Roney Plaza Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla., where he is recuperating from a serious operation performed about six weeks ago. Although he is improving rapidly he can only walk with the aid of a cane. He will remain at Miami Beach with his wife for several weeks.

ESSEX CHALLENGER PROVES CLIMBING POWER IN HILL TEST

A demonstration of the hill-climbing ability of the new Essex 6 Challenger was provided locally Thursday afternoon in connection with the nation-wide campaign to stimulate interest in National Challenger Week.

Accompanied by a newspaper representative and Harry Chappel, of the Chappel Motor Co., W. Second St., local agent, Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, tested the power of a new Essex Challenger motor in a demonstration on the steep Wilberforce hill, considered one of the most difficult grades in this vicinity. The car not only took the hill on high but "picked up" eight miles an hour in two-tenths of a mile.

According to the traffic officer, the new Essex is a fine riding and driving car, has a quick pick-up and is particularly easy to control in traffic.

Thursday's demonstration was one of a series of public tests of the 1930 model Essex. Friday the observance of Challenger Week will be concluded when Miss Dorothy Catter, driving a new model Essex, was scheduled to drive through Xenia streets demonstrating the advantages of the car. She will stop upon request and will take anyone a ride in the machine to exhibit its qualities.

PLAN BIBLE CLASSES PRECEDING EASTER

Mrs. Walter Dean will open her home at 27 W. Market St. for a get-together inspirational meeting at 1:30 o'clock next Thursday afternoon for workers and those interested in the group Bible classes which will begin at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The classes are to be conducted in about ten homes in the city and will continue for four weeks preceding Easter season. Various churches are represented on the committee sponsoring this work. The committee in charge is composed of Mrs. Robert Dixon, Miss Florence Swan, Miss Essie Hempelman, Mrs. J. E. Kohl, Miss Margaret Moorehead, Mrs. A. D. Chamberlin, Mrs. Oscar Pidgeon, Mrs. Grover Crawford, Mrs. J. R. Lunsford and Mrs. Leroy Sutton.

Brilliant New York Nuptials

Edmund M. McCarthy, of Springfield, Mass., with his bride, the former Miss Veronica Curry, daughter of the Tammany chief, John F. ## HOME ELIMINATED

(BULLETIN)

The O. S. and S. O. Home basketball quintet, one of four Greene County entries in the Southwestern sectional Class B cage tournament at Springfield, was eliminated by a score of 43 to 12 in its first round game with DeGraff, Logan County team, early Friday afternoon. A total of thirty-three personal fouls was called during the contest and four regulars of the Home team were banished from the game on personals. The Xenia entry made a good showing in the first half but in the second half scored only one point.

New serial story starting next week in The Gazette. Written by Alma Sioux Scarberry. Watch for the opening installment.

W. R. TORRENCE IS MADE LIFE MEMBER OF TRAFFIC CLUB

W. R. Torrence, who retired March 1 as freight agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad here after forty-six years of service with the railroad, was honored by election to life membership in the Miami Valley Traffic Club at the first meeting of the board of directors at the Van Cleve Hotel, Dayton, Thursday night.

B. E. Olsen, traffic manager of the McCall Co., Dayton, president of the club, announced the honor to Mr. Torrence Friday. The honorary membership will be formally presented to Mr. Torrence at either the Xenia dinner meeting of the club or at the annual golf outing to be held on the Xenia Country Club links during the coming summer.

Mr. Torrence is the fifth club member so honored, the custom being followed among club members who are retired from their active business associations.

CHAPTER LIII

It was plain to those in the boats that the weight of one more person would put the gunwales of each under water. Having no recourse, then, to set out for work and the little boats sped away from the sinking yacht and the raft to which the three, who risked their lives were clinging.

"If only we could reach the shore safely and return in time to rescue them," breathed Pat. "Goodbye, friends," came the voice of Dr. Gordon over the water from his position beside the captain and first officer on the raft.

None of those in the boats could speak. They waved in mute farewell, each hoping that the raft would remain afloat until they could return.

Suddenly, as they watched in the red glow of the dawn, a black fin six inches of it showing above the water's surface, cut across their line of vision. Everyone in the little boat saw it. Lucy Pine screamed in terror.

"There's no danger," the lawyer assured her. "A shark won't attack a boat."

He looked at her, a rather grim smile twisting his lips. "That doesn't apply to a person swimming, though," he said meaningly.

Pat and Margery both shuddered. The former's hand shook visibly where it lay over her brother's heart, his head resting in her lap. All the women were seated flat on the boat's bottom.

The yacht's deck, by this time was almost level with the ocean's surface as they watched, the three men on the raft could be seen waving. The next instant the yacht's bow tilted to an angle of 45 degrees, the stern sank, and then, with a swift gliding motion, the Bluebird slipped from their vision.

Their task now, those in the boats, was to reach the shore as speedily as possible. Perhaps, if luck were with them, they would return to find the three on the raft still alive.

The boat containing the eight remaining men of the crew pulled close to the other, Bam's, the radio operator spoke. "Keep close behind us," he cautioned. "We're going to head for that point of land," indicating with a wave of his hand.

The sea was not running high and the two-mile pull to shore was made in fairly good time. Pat, peering back toward the ocean, could make out the raft, and by aid of Ballard's glasses reported that its occupants still remained alive.

"We must hurry," she urged. The men were pulling with as much speed as was safe, heavily laden as the little craft was.

On the shore another surprise awaited them. The two colored porters, the waiters, and the two oilers, waded out to meet them.

"We've got those five deckhands and that double-crossing Paulson all scotched and tied up," Miss Blair, proclaimed the head waiter jubilantly. "Paulson and that Pete blew the Bluebird up and we knew that unless we came ashore with them in the motorboat, we'd drown. So we came along."

"But, after we landed, we piled into them, took Paulson's gun, and tied them up. The motorboat is down the beach. And there's a harbor and town about a mile from here."

"But, where's the doctor and the captain and Mr. Peterson?" The waiter was visibly moved by the absence of the three, sensing possible disaster in the faces of those about him.

"That's just it, George," broke out Pat. "They are, all three, back on the raft, and we must hurry back with the motorboat or we'll not find them alive. The waiters here are infested with sharks, so the captain said."

The waiter, mouth open, turned and started in a dead run toward the motorboat, Ballard and two members of the crew close behind.

"We'll bring them back safe," called Rex, over his shoulder to Pat, as he hurried after the waiter. And five minutes later those who waited heard the sound of the motor and saw the boat nose out from the shore for the open ocean and the raft, on its mission of rescue.

"They're going to make it, all right," almost shouted Pat, as she watched first the boat and then the raft through the glasses. "Oh, thank the merciful God."

The motorboat was not long in accomplishing its mission, Pat reporting that she could see the three men taken aboard and the boat heading again for shore.

In a little while there was a joyful reunion on the beach, the girls and Aunt Lottie hugging the three, who had risked their lives in turn.

"This," ventured Dr. Gordon, after a series of successive embraces, "is well worth risking one's life for." He seemed strangely older to Pat than the Frank she had talked with the night before. In his eyes was a look of resignation. And Pat, knowing the reason, was a bit downcast herself.

The party then turned its attention to Jimmy. He was placed on the clean, white sand of the beach and Pat was lifting his head slowly, stared up at the staring eyes surrounding him, then shifting his gaze, looked out on the ocean. After a moment he turned back to Pat. "Where," he went on in the slow, painful way as before, "the devil—am—I, anyhow? And where'd you come from? I don't seem—" Again he stopped. Rex Dallard at that instant had moved into his line of vision. Jimmy stared at him a moment. Then:

"Why, there's—the bird—I—lugged—outta—the hole!" he croaked. "Hello, ho, how'd we—get here, do you know?"

SAILOR ENDS LIFE

The Theater

Elsie Janis, the incomparable mimic, whom Charles Dillingham thinks is one of the superb actresses of the modern stage, finds the making of musical, talking productions the most trying and nerve-shattering experience of all the stage work she has ever done.

The noted comedienne and impersonator of the stage is now supervising production of "Paramount on Parade," the Paramount contribution to all-star revues.

"The studios have practically limitless opportunities and resources at their command," she says. "And the movies are suffering from the same illusions the man has success to her credit in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "No, No, Nanette" and "Putting on the Ritz" and with Victor McLaglen as the vamp in "On the Level." June Parker, a radio crooner, will also be on the program.

Roscoe Arbuckle, the former fat comedian, is reported to be that way about Rital La Roy, who is being hailed as a celluloid comer. Arbuckle has been a gag man for R.C.O. and lately recently completed the vamp role in Richard Dix's talkie, "Lovin' the Ladies." She is reported helping Roscoe pick the furnishings for his new home.

Twenty Years '10-Ago-'30

Residents of New Jasper were treated to a mad dog scare when a little dog went on a rampage in the village and chased the citizens right and left.

Milton McKay, county surveyor, will read a paper on "Road Building" at the Good "Road Building" at the Good the Court House next week.

Jamestown is going into ecstasy over the fact the village has eight men who tip the scales at 2,172 pounds, an average per man of 272½.

Mr. and Mrs. Mox Simon, of S. Galloway St., have a fine baby son at their home.

Mr. Frank Street and family, who have been residing near Lumberton, have moved to a farm two miles south of Xenia.

Even the ingenues have adopted all-black for their newest dresses this season. Dorothy Jordan, pretty screen actress, wears a dinner frock of sheer georgette with lace trimmings.

stage producers had after the war, when everyone tried to outdo his neighbor in the elaborateness and costliness of his revues.

"Audiences prefer to see shows featuring star comedians, or star dancers, with a lot of songs and a lot of comedy. They are not so much amused by the elaborate spectacles as the producers believe."

For this reason there shall be a fair amount of elaboration in the Paramount all-star contribution, she insists, and a maximum of individual cleverness.

"Yes, I like the work very much," says Miss Janis, "but it is most exciting. There is so much detail to be worked out in a picture, you know. We only have one performance. That must be our best. After you have put in a day trying to supervise everything connected with a musical picture, you are ready for bed."

Edmund Lowe, the immaculate dresser, who was so successful in "The Fool," "What Price Glory," "In Old Arizona," and "The Cook-Eyed World," will be the leading attraction on the Paul Whiteman-Old Gold Radio hour over the Columbia system next Tuesday evening from 9 to 10 o'clock.

Lowe's wife, Lilyan Tashman, the blonde of the screen, will also be with him. She was seen here last in "Bulldog Drummond," as the woman crook. Miss Tash-
